

Let the Students Speak: Empowering Student Voices in Education

Let the Students Speak is a non-profit organization that amplifies student voices to improve education. We believe that students have valuable insights and perspectives that should be heard and considered in decision-making. Through research, advocacy, and programs, we empower students to share their voices and influence change.

Our Mission

Our mission is to amplify student voices to improve education. We believe that students have the right to be heard and that their perspectives matter. We work to ensure that students are given a platform to share their ideas and that their voices are respected.

Our History

Let the Students Speak was founded in 2015 by a group of educators who were frustrated by the lack of student voice in education. We believed that students were not being given a fair chance to share their thoughts and ideas, and that this was having a negative impact on their education.

Since our founding, we have grown into a national organization with chapters in over 20 states. We have worked with thousands of students to amplify their voices and improve education. Our work has been featured in the media, including The New York Times, The Washington Post, and National Public Radio.

Our Work

We work to amplify student voices through research, advocacy, and programs.

Research

We conduct research to identify the barriers that students face to sharing their voices. We also research the impact of student voice on education. Our research has been used to inform policy and practice at the local, state, and national levels.

Advocacy

We advocate for policies that support student voice. We work with policymakers at the local, state, and national levels to ensure that students have a voice in the decisions that affect their education.

Programs

We offer a variety of programs to help students share their voices. Our programs include:

- Student Voice Labs: Our Student Voice Labs are designed to help students develop the skills they need to share their voices effectively. Labs are offered in schools and community organizations across the country.
- Student Voice Summit: Our Student Voice Summit is an annual event that brings together students from across the country to share their ideas and learn from each other.
- Student Voice Network: Our Student Voice Network is a network of students who are passionate about sharing their voices. Network members receive exclusive resources and opportunities to connect with other students.

Our Impact

We have seen firsthand the impact that student voice can have on education. When students are given a chance to share their voices, they become more engaged in their learning, their schools, and their communities. They also develop the skills they need to be successful in college, career, and life.

Here are a few examples of the impact that our work has had:

- In one school district, we worked with students to develop a student voice policy. The policy gave students a formal voice in school decision-making. As a result, students were more engaged in their school and their learning.

- In another school district, we worked with students to create a student voice committee. The committee gives students a platform to share their ideas and concerns with school administrators.
- In a third school district, we worked with students to develop a student voice curriculum. The curriculum teaches students the skills they need to share their voices effectively.

How You Can Help

There are many ways that you can help us amplify student voices in education. Here are a few ideas:

- Donate to our organization. Your donation will help us continue our work to amplify student voices.
- Volunteer your time. We are always looking for volunteers to help us with our programs and events.
- Spread the word about our work. Tell your friends, family, and colleagues about Let the Students Speak.
- Get involved in your local school. Attend school board meetings and speak out in support of student voice.

Together, we can make a difference. Let's amplify student voices to improve education!
