There are many different types of bets you can place on a horse race. The most common type of bet is a win bet, which means you're betting on a horse to win the race. You can also bet on a horse to place (finish in the top three) or show (finish in the top four). There are also more complex bets, such as exacta bets and trifecta bets, which require you to predict the exact order in which the horses will finish.

When you're placing a bet, you'll need to decide how much you want to bet. The minimum bet amount varies from race to race, but it's typically $2 or $5. You can also bet more than the minimum amount, but the maximum bet amount is usually limited.

Once you've placed your bet, you'll need to wait for the race to start. You can watch the race live on the horse racing website or app, or you can follow the results.
